Mr. Fillmore's Record.
The highest estimate of the irreproachable public life of James Buchanan, is to be found in the fact that his enemies have to travel back more than forty years to find an excuse to make even a plausible assault upon him. Although he was for ten years a member of Congress, ten years a Senator, four years Secretary of State, and twice the representative of the government at the most important courts of Europe, not one single act of this long public life is attempted to be brought up in judgment against him.

During the period when Mr. Buchanan held these high official positions, the important measures of public policy which have divided political parties were discussed and settled. In all those discussions Mr. Buchanan bore an active part, and upon all those questions either his opinions or votes are recorded. The Know Nothing or Abolition press, however, has not yet dared to examine from the records of Congress, or the archives of the State Department, any of his opinions whereupon to assault him. Save and excepting the contemptible forgery by which he was attempted to be connected with some Free Soil resolutions passed at a meeting in Pennsylvania in 1849, the only assault which the enemies of the Democratic party have yet been able to make against its present candidate is in reference to a speech which he is reported to have made in 1845. Even if Mr. Buchanan had not almost immediately after the delivery of that speech, retreated the erroneous opinions it contained, and expressed his regret that they were ever uttered, the Democrats of party might well be proud of a candidate against whom villainous and industrious enemies are not only unable to make an assault, but who has been able to make an assault upon them.

But how stands the record with Mr. Fillmore? With what sort of grace or consistency can he or his followers make the charge of federalism against James Buchanan? When has Mr. Fillmore, or the party with which he has been identified, ever occupied any other position than that of hostility to the government in all of its conflicts with foreign powers? Certainly not when we were engaged in the war with Mexico. The northern Free Soil politicians, of whom he was then a leading one, demonstrated how deeply they were imbued with the federalism that burnt blue lights upon the Atlantic coast, by denouncing the Mexican war as a war against God, and praying that our gallant soldiers might be rewarded with bloody hands to hospital graves.

Mr. Buchanan at that time, as Secretary of State, was laboring with all the assiduity and energy of his nature to promote the glory of the country, by bringing the war to a triumphant issue. Within the last twelve months, while Mr. Fillmore was exerting his great talents at the Court of St. James to obtain reparation for our national flag, and the recognition of our proper prerogatives upon the American Continent, Mr. Fillmore was making costly tours in Royal Palaces, and his organs were expounding the cause of England and denouncing the United States government and its Minister.

But the chief purpose for which we commenced this article, was to lay before our readers a part of Mr. Fillmore's record upon the vital and living question of the day. The people do not now ask how Mr. Fillmore stood in reference to the war of 1812, or the Mexican war. They desire to know how and where he stands upon all the absorbing domestic question which is rocking our institutions to their very foundations.

Mr. Fillmore for or against the principles of the Kansas-Nebraska bill as the policy of the country on the subject of slavery? This is the question that is uppermost in all minds and springs to all lips. In Mr. Fillmore's letter accepting the nomination of the Know Nothing party, there is no record no clue by which this important inquiry can be answered. Upon that, as upon every other question of public policy, Mr. Fillmore has observed a most dignified silence—a silence hardly provoked from the crowned heads among whom he has been making a pilgrimage. This is a kindly feeling. This omission of his, therefore, compels us to search through Mr. Fillmore's record to find what was his opinion about slavery, and the power of the Federal Congress over it as a domestic institution.

Prior to 1850, Mr. Fillmore was not prominently in public life, but having been selected to Congress the previous year, the abolitionists thought it worth while to extort his opinion. Consequently an anti-slavery society at Erie addressed him a letter of enquiry, to which he made the following reply:

Buffalo, October 10, 1850.
Sir—Your communication, as chairman of the Society appointed by the Anti-Slavery Society of the county of Erie, has just come to hand. I will submit my answer to the following interrogatories:

First—Do you believe that petitions to Congress on the subject of slavery and the slave trade ought to be received, read and respectfully considered by the representatives of the people?

Second—Are you opposed to the annexation of Texas to this Union, under any circumstances, so long as slavery is not therein?

Third—Are you in favor of Congress exercising all the constitutional power it possesses to abolish the international slave trade between the States?

Fourth—Are you in favor of immediate legislation for the abolition of slavery in the District of Columbia?

I am much obliged, and have no time to extend into an argument, or to explain at length my reasons for my opinion. I shall, therefore, for the present, content myself by answering all your interrogatories in the affirmative, and leave your future action a more extended discussion of the subject.

Very respectfully,
MILLARD FILLMORE.

After Mr. Fillmore took his seat in Congress, he was in full accordance with the views avowed in this letter to the Abolitionists of Erie. On the 11th day of December 1850, the following resolutions were offered in the House of Representatives by Charles A. Johnson, a Democratic member from New Hampshire:

Resolved, That Congress has no right to interfere with the institution of slavery in the several States of the Confederacy.

Resolved, That Congress has no right to interfere with the institution of slavery in the District of Columbia, or in the Territories of the United States, against the removal of slaves from one State to another, or a part of a State to another, or to affect the institution of slavery in the several States and this territory to destroy that institution within their limits.

Resolved, That Congress has no right to interfere with the institution of slavery in the several States of the Confederacy, or in the Territories of the United States, against the removal of slaves from one State to another, or a part of a State to another, or to affect the institution of slavery in the several States and this territory to destroy that institution within their limits.

Monday last being County Court day, the town of Greenburg was alive with the excitement. Mr. Kavanaugh, candidate for the office of Sheriff, and was followed by Andy Barnett and R. Logan. The excitement was at its height when the County Court assembled. How does it happen that Mr. Kavanaugh is a candidate for Commonwealth's Attorney? We don't understand it.

WHICH cannot be done by any other means. The dyeing of that grey or ashy tint has been the greatest desideratum for many years, and has been attributed with little care to the dyeing of the material with its color. For instance, in coloring black cloth, the dyeing is done by the use of a mixture of iron and copper, and the result is a color of a very different shade from that which is obtained by the use of the same materials. The dyeing of the material with its color is the only way of obtaining the desired result, and the only way of obtaining the desired result is by the use of the same materials.
